

In conclusion, it should be noted that the importance of international institutions becomes evident from the fact that even the most powerful states prefer to act through international institutions.

References:

1. Stiglitz J. Globalisation: time to look at historic mistakes to plot the future. –

[Electronic resource] – Access mode:
<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2017/dec/05/globalisation-time-look-at-past-plot-the-future-joseph-stiglitz>.

2. Timmermans F., Katainen J. Reflection Paper On Harnessing Globalisation / Frans Timmermans, Jirki Katainen // European Commission, 2017. – 21 p.

3. Wolf M. Why Globalization Works / Martin Wolf. – New Haven: Yale University Press, 2004. – 416 p.

Maxym Martyshchuk,

Research supervisor: Tetyana Nadvynychna
Candidate of Psychological Sciences, Associate Professor
Language tutor: Natalia Rybina
Candidate of Philological Sciences, Associate Professor
Ternopil National Economic University

COMMON TYPES OF DISCRIMINATION IN UKRAINE AND ITS IMPACT ON THE SOCIAL LIFE OF THE POPULATION

Living in the twenty-first century, we often encounter such a thing as discrimination. It haunts us in almost all spheres of public life and inevitably impact on the formation of the individual citizen, which has its own position and can Express their opinions. In my opinion, the greatest impact of this phenomenon is undergoing such a category of citizens, as the rural population. Villagers often have limited rights and are potentially vulnerable to obtaining public goods. This situation must be corrected because it entails a number of negative phenomena that adversely affect their lives. For example, you can take to review the work of the rural infrastructures that work with violations of the rules and laws written in the Constitution of Ukraine.

One of these disorders, for example, there are cases of sale of alcohol and tobacco by minors in rural communities, which contributes to the degradation of the young population, but will also form a specific world view of boys and girls. Even solving simple everyday problems is a challenge for this population because of the lack of enforcement of justice, as all the responsibilities of the village heads, who often has not only a legal or economic education, but higher education itself. A separate issue is the availability of quality education. The teacher does not motivated, hence the indifference towards the students and as a result, disinterest teenagers to thorough knowledge.

In our opinion, most public cases remain unsolved, through the "lowered" the hands of the population. Another major issue is the low level of education in such localities, associated with inadequate funding from the state. That is, we see that people who live in the countryside, are discriminated against by the state, which gives sufficient conditions for the normal functioning of state and local agencies in rural areas. Through this, the citizens developed stereotypical view regarding the rural population, of their inferiority in terms of doing "normal" lifestyle.

According to "economic" discrimination, it concerns not only the rural population but of the entire working class of our society . It is connected also with the stereotype that has developed throughout the existence of the legal state system. It is due to the fact that the person with average economic prosperity, it will be difficult to climb a step higher in rank "of status". This opinion is associated with high levels of corruption, which is thoroughly ingrained chewing gum in our routine. No wonder the saying goes: "not to soil the hands, sometimes you need to put on the hand bill. Banknote of large denomination, which is to get the common man will be very difficult.

Discrimination of certain ethnic groups and minorities requires special attention. Because of their origin often face difficulties in obtaining important life benefits.

Conclusion. In the modern world the concept of "discrimination" has gained widespread and manifests itself in many areas of public life. In Ukraine there is no law that prohibits discrimination in all its possible spheres. So, we came to the conclusion that this matter very serious consideration and by reforms to resolve this problem.